Royals buoy Slave Lake

Wills and Kate spend day off with town's emergency responders and families

After fire and flooding devastated their community, more than 1,000 adoring fans in Slave Lake got the rare chance to catch a brief glimpse of the newlywed royal couple yesterday.

Prince William and Kate, the Duke and Duchess of Cambridge, made a quick and slightly unplanned stop in the fire-ravaged town to boost the morale of the residents, many of whom lost everything.

"It is such a great beginning of the healing process," said Cathy Redgate, one of the residents whose home burnt to the ground during the May fire.

Redgate and her husband were two of the 50 residents who got a private meet-and-greet with the Royal couple inside the Northern Lakes College gym.

"It will be a very special moment in my life," said Redgate.

Even the people who lined up for hours were thrilled by the couple's brief visit.

"They got me on cloud nine," said Kristin Miller, 17.

Miller, her parents and her two dogs waited since the early morning for the chance to meet the pair.

Slave Lake Mayor Karina Pillay-Kinnee and Premier Ed Stelmach were among the dignitaries to join the couple as they toured the northern Alberta town.

"(Kate) was interested ... in how people are going to start building their homes and where families are now, how many people have been displaced," the mayor said.

"She was very concerned. She really focused on how are we going to get going on the reconstruction and rebuild. It was an amazing, amazing moment."

Pillay-Kinnee said there was no doubt the visit, which took only a few hours of the couple's time, left a lasting impression.

The newlyweds wrap up their Canadian tour in Calgary this weekend. CANDICE WARD/WITH FILES FROM THE CANADIAN PRESS

Burger truck hitting the streets

Charcut Roast House will be taking to the streets later this month, launching an Alley Burger food truck.

The Alley Burger began with $5 gourmet burgers being doled out in limited quantities through the back door of Charcut.

An alert would be sent out through Twitter and Facebook, and fans of the restaurant would flock down for the late-night dinner.

The same system will be followed with the food truck as exact times and locations for lunch hour service will be sent out through social media.

In addition to the Alley Burger, new special burgers, hand-cut duck-fat fried potatoes and poutine will be served.

Plastic transit payment in time for Stampede

Credit-card option already in place at many C-Train stops, debit on way
Calgary Transit paying $800,000 to introduce new measures

Calgary Stampede commuters take note: Paying with plastic is in and scrambling to find exact change is out.

That's the message from Calgary Transit officials, who have already unveiled credit-card-payment options at most C-Train stations and plan to introduce change refunds just in time for the Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth, beginning tomorrow.

Dan Morgan, manager of service design for CT, said feedback on the machines has been positive so far, but they have yet to launch a formal public-awareness campaign.

"We just wanted to make sure it was all good before we went out and let people know," he said.

Morgan added that debit-card capabilities will also come online before the month is out.

Metro spent nearly an hour at Bridgeland C-Train station yesterday discussing the new payment options with commuters.

Most were not aware of the changes — two individuals even attempted to cram their coins into the credit card machine — but nearly everyone supported the upgrades

"I think it's great," said Sara Barss. "It's pretty hard to have exact change... this is so much more convenient."

JEREMY NOLAIS AND KATIE TURNER

95 per cent ready

- Calgary Transit's Dan Morgan said about 95 per cent of C-Train stations have credit-card-payment capabilities.
- The exceptions are some stations being upgraded along 7th Avenue downtown.
- Feedback about the new payment options has been monitored primarily through social media — namely Twitter — to date.

Avatar fan has tattoos to prove it

Avatar was a phenomenon when it was released — and something about it stuck with Edmonton resident Raymond Knowles, perhaps moreso than with other moviegoers.

The 43-year-old carpenter has tattoos on his back of Neytiri, the main female Na'vi, and is getting work done on another.

"(I'm) getting Neytiri's skin colour on my butt and up each side," he said, he plans on adding even more.

Knowles said his wife Cheryl didn't like the first tattoo but warmed up afterward.

Man sought in liquor holdup

CRIME. Police are looking for a suspect after a liquor-store robbery. At midnight on Sunday, a man walked into the Altadore Liquor Store and asked for several bottles of high-end spirits. The suspect then left without paying. When the clerk followed and questioned the man, he revealed a black handgun tucked in his waistband. Police are looking for a white male, about six feet tall and 35 years of age. Anyone with information is asked to call 403-266-1234.

More than 1,000 fans waited in line, some of them overnight, to get their hands on a coveted wristband that will let them be part of the royal tour, although some were looking to see cash rather than the couple.

Hours after the free wristbands were handed out at Max Bell Arena yesterday, posts began to pop up on Kijiji and Craigslist. Some demanded as much as $500 per wristband.

James Wong was one of the many who camped overnight. He said he was disappointed to see wristbands up for sale.

"When I was down there, I saw a lot of young people and I felt kind of glad, like, 'Oh cool — the future of monarchism,'" he said. "But it turns out a lot of those people were just lining up to sell them."

City spokesperson Derek Heric said officials thought this might happen.

"If there's someone who would choose to stand in line on their own time and then turn around and sell that wristband, and there's someone willing to pay whatever price they're asking, then there's really nothing we can do about that."

Secret shopper

Metro posed as a prospective buyer. Here's what two wristband sellers said of their reasoning:

- "We got a set for each event, but we can only take time off to go to one of them. Money is kind of tight, so we decided to sell one pair," said a woman who was selling a pair of wristbands for $300.
- "We are actually still planning to go!" said a man who was selling each wristband for $300. "We wanted to take some friends. The price would be much higher if we were selling our own tickets."

Hoping to pay tribute to the past while springing into the future, the Calgary Stampede unveiled its 2012 centennial poster last night.

The painting features the warm presence of Guy Weadick, who founded what is now considered by many to be The Greatest Outdoor Show on Earth, over the shoulder of an aspiring cowboy.

Artist Harley Brown said he toiled over the creation for many months and applied the final stroke as it was being loaded into a truck for transport.

"You have got be a little loony to be an artist," he joked after unveiling the poster to thousands at the BMO Centre.

"You have to wait for that moment when the person's alive … and then you don't do any more. It's finished."

Mike Casey, president and chair of the Stampede board, said he couldn't be happier with the painting.

- The centennial poster will be up for sale with dozens of other pieces at the Western Art Auction next Thursday at the Palomino Room, starting at 6 p.m.

Families trek for days to find food

Worst drought in 60 years threatens millions in East Africa

Thousands of families are walking for days in search of food in a triangle of hunger where the borders of Ethiopia, Kenya and Somalia meet.

Hundreds already have died in a widespread drought. Images of children with skinny, malnourished bodies are common.

A devastating lack of rain has reduced livestock, incomes and food supplies.

Livestock are dying by the thousands, and food prices have risen beyond what families can afford.

Hawo Ibrahim said she and her seven children trekked for 15 days from a town in southern Somalia before reaching a refugee camp in northeast Kenya.

"We have seen misery and hunger on our way," said Ibrahim, 32, who said her husband went mad after the family lost its livestock to drought.

"The most painful thing was when you don't get anything for your thirsty and hungry children." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Hunger triangle

- The epicentre of the drought lies on the three-way border shared by Kenya, Ethiopia and Somalia, a nomadic region where families heavily depend on the health of their livestock.
- Somalis desperate for food are overrunning the world's largest refugee camp in neighbouring Kenya, which is seeing some 10,000 new arrivals each week — six times the average.
- Many Somali children are arriving at refugee camps so weak that they are dying within 24 hours despite emergency care and feeding, a United Nations worker said.

'This isn't your grandma's royal visit'

Royal observers say Prince William and Kate are not only rekindling Canada's love affair with the monarchy. They're impressing the world.

Nearly every aspect of their travels has been broadcast globally.

The tour has dominated newscasts across the United Kingdom, a marked departure from previous royal visits, which "are lucky to get 30 seconds on the evening news," said royal observer and historian Rafal Heydel-Mankoo.

Younger Canadians also seem to have been won over by the royals, said Matthew Rowe of the Monarchist League of Canada.

Dragon boat races and barbecues have helped boost the couple's popularity among young people, said Rowe.

Pooch has dog-gone incredible journey

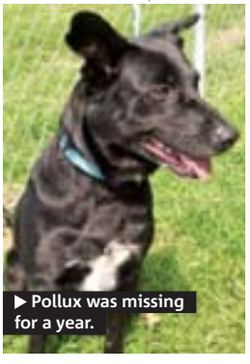
Black Lab travelled thousands of kilometres from Montreal to B.C. Tracking chip led to owners

A Montreal pooch who disappeared last year has miraculously turned up some 4,500 kilometres away in Kamloops, B.C.

The black Labrador named Pollux detests the rain, yet she took an adventurous turn upon fleeing through a gate mistakenly left open at her Montreal home last June 20.

Her owner, Isabelle Robitaille, said the family had searched high and low and given up hope they'd ever find the dog they had adopted from the SPCA in 2005.

HANDOUT/THE CANADIAN PRESS



▶ Pollux was missing for a year.

Then last week, on Canada Day, they received a shocking phone call from the SPCA in Kamloops: A dog with a tracking chip containing her information had been found in B.C.

Photos sent by the shelter confirmed it, Robitaille said. Pollux was alive and well although a bit leaner than before. "They told me she was in excellent condition," Robitaille said.

But just how she got to B.C. remains a mystery.

On the day she disappeared from the family backyard, it had been raining, so Robitaille suspects she might have hopped into a freight train to avoid the rain.

Getting home won't nearly be as big an ordeal: Pollux will be flying home courtesy of SPCA International, which will foot the bill. THE CANADIAN PRESS

Dubbed the "official cat lady of the country" by Ottawa's mayor, Laureen Harper helped unveil the new Ottawa Humane Society with her husband, daughter and Ottawa-West Nepean MP John Baird.

As a longtime supporter of the charitable organization, Mrs. Harper said she was thrilled to see the new 40,000-square-foot headquarters.

Two of her family's three cats — including their latest addition, Stanley — came from the old building, which was dark, overcrowded and noticeably aging.

"Now we have a facility that's truly state-of-the-art, where animals can come from difficult circumstances, come get help, get back on their feet — or their paws — before being adopted in their forever families," said Mrs. Harper.

The prime minister and his family couldn't resist the purrs from the cat room — a space built for potential foster families to get to know the cats they might adopt. The Harpers, Baird and Ottawa Mayor Jim Watson each cuddled with a feline friend before seeing the rest of the building's furry pets.

The OHS said a family has already adopted the first pet from the new building, but it wasn't the Harpers — even though they're known to give cats that come into the OHS a temporary home at 24 Sussex Dr.

The Harpers, however, went home empty-handed this time.

ARMY TRIAL

Doc could face death penalty

The U.S. army psychiatrist charged in the deadly Fort Hood rampage will be tried in a military court.

Maj. Nidal Hasan, 40, is charged with 13 counts of premeditated murder and 32 counts of attempted premeditated murder in the November 2009 shooting spree at the Texas army post.

Hasan may face the death penalty, the commanding general for the Texas military post announced yesterday.

It was not clear when Hasan will be arraigned in a Fort Hood court and enter a plea.

Hasan was paralyzed from the waist down after being shot by police the day of the rampage.

In cases where death is not an option, soldiers convicted of capital murder are automatically sentenced to life imprisonment without parole. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NOT A MAN FOR ALL SEASONS

HE SAYS ...

JOHN MAZEROLLE
METRO

There are two types of people in this world: People who like summer, and me.

After much consideration, I have decided to side with me.

Summer has its perks, sure — a box of Junior Mints left in the car transforms magically into one giant Junior Mint — but it's still the most overrated season. Its default No. 1 position bugs me: summer gets celebrated simply for arriving on the scene, the Miami Heat of Mother Nature.

Well, I'm here to speak truth to power: Summer is, at best, tied with winter for last place. So much of summer's warm reputation doesn't hold up in the cold light of day.

Take summer vacation, that idyllic childhood window filled with bee stings, bike crashes and, if you went with the full package, broken bones.

These are the best days of our lives?

"Even summer's most cited perk, the weather, is not all it's cracked up to be. On any given day there is bound to be a smog alert, a humidex warning, a UV warning ..."

The backyard playground alone was a death trap: A hard plastic swing, apparently coated with Pam, that caused every child to slip toward the ground face-first with the force of a robin into a bay window. This resulted in the official childhood Five-Alarm Cry: Stunned silence/siren wail/more silence/remembering to breathe/more wailing.

The slippery swing seat is baffling in retrospect, because the slide attached on the side was so non-slippery that nothing could go down it, including marbles. Kids didn't slide down it, so much as shimmy. Water might have gone down it, except the slide was made of metal and often got so hot that it would start emitting X-rays. "It's nice out, so don't play on the slide!" was a common parental warning.

Of course, now that I'm an adult I can see there's more to summer than just potential injuries — there's also potential death.

Between beach riptides, exploding barbecues and wildlife attacks, there is hardly a chance to contract West Nile.

Even summer's most cited perk, the weather, is not all it's cracked up to be. On any given day there is bound to be a smog alert, a humidex warning, a UV warning, a severe-thunderstorm watch, a tornado warning, a watch-for-warnings watch, a stolen-watch warning or a "special weather statement" that warns of some weather pattern you've never heard of before, like a "Manure Storm" or "Smulch."

All things considered, it's better to hibernate until winter. I recommend a stockpile of Junior Mints to see you through.

Worth mentioning

LOS ANGELES. It began as a bright white dot in Saturn's northern hemisphere. Within days, the dot grew larger and stormier.

Soon, the tempest enveloped the ringed planet, triggering lightning flashes thousands of times more intense than on Earth.

The international Cassini spacecraft and ground telescopes have been tracking the turbulence since last December, visible from Earth as a type of storm known as a "Great White Spot."

"It's still going like crazy," said Cassini project scientist Linda Spilker of the NASA Jet Propulsion Laboratory.

Such planet-wide weather disturbances are rare on Saturn, where the atmosphere is typically hazy and calm. Since 1876, astronomers have observed only five other megastorms on Saturn.

At the height of the storm, Cassini detected 10 lightning strikes per second. Scientists said the electrical activity emitted by the bursts were 10,000 times stronger than lightning on Earth.

WEIRD NEWS

Now you see it, now you don't

Police are on the hunt for a man who walked into a San Francisco art gallery, grabbed a valuable pencil drawing by Pablo Picasso off the wall and then fled in a waiting taxicab.

Police said Tuesday the drawing, worth hundreds of thousands of dollars, was taken from the Weinstein Gallery near Union Square.

The gallery said Picasso created the one-of-a-kind drawing titled Tete de Femme in 1965.

Officer Albie Esparza told the San Francisco Chronicle that police hope a member of the public might recognize the piece if someone attempts to sell it.

Other artists whose works are still on display at the gallery include Marc Chagall, Salvador Dali and Joan Miro.

Police described the suspect as a man in his 30s wearing loafers and dark glasses.

Lawsuit against steel plant a go: Judge

A woman leading a case against the federal and provincial governments over Cape Breton's notorious tar ponds says her seven-year fight to have it approved as a class-action lawsuit has finally paid off.

Anne Ross praised a decision by a Nova Scotia Supreme Court judge yesterday that gives the green light to a legal action involving decades of contaminants spewed from the former Sydney Steel Corp. plant.

"It's wonderful," she said from Sydney, N.S., where she has lived in the same home for for 51 years. "I'm ecstatic over it. It took a long time — seven years — but it's well worth the wait."

Ross, who launched the case with three other lifelong residents, is seeking compensation for property damage, exposure to industrial toxins and funds to establish a medical monitoring program.

Many of the people who have grown up around the heavily contaminated site are suing to have their properties cleaned up, their lawyers said.

Justice John Murphy said the lawsuit will include two groups: current homeowners in Whitney Pier, Ashby and the north end of Sydney, as well as those who lived in the neighbourhoods for at least seven years between 1967 and 2000, when the plant was in operation.

The suit could include up to 20,000 people, with tests required to substantiate claims.

South Sudan makes oil pipeline plan

An official from oil-rich Southern Sudan said yesterday the government is considering connecting its oil supply to an East African pipeline and bypassing Khartoum-run pipelines, a move that could further deteriorate relations between the north and south as Southern Sudan prepares for independence.

Southern Sudan will declare its independence on Saturday, but some vital provisions of its split from the north — such as oil rights and wealth-sharing — have not been settled. Last month, northern President Omar al-Bashir said he would block the south's access to the pipelines unless a favourable wealth-sharing agreement was reached.

The south accounts for more than three-quarters of Sudan's total oil output but is reliant on northern refineries and pipelines.

Southern roads and transport minister Anthony Lino Makana said his government has been meeting with petroleum companies interested in building a pipeline connecting the south's oil to ports in East Africa. He did not specify which companies had approached his government.

Makana said oil infrastructure in neighbouring Kenya will quickly allow the south to pump its oil through existing Kenyan pipelines.

"To put a pipeline is very easy for us," he told reporters in Juba.

Makana said that at a cost of "only a few million dollars," new pipelines will allow the south to "refine and pump petrol in the reverse," meaning not from south to north, as is currently done. "We won't need to export very far," he added. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Obama gives a Tweet — sort of

Twitter whittles Obama's answers down to a snappy 140 characters or less for the site

U.S. President Barack Obama answered questions from Twitter users in a town hall meeting yesterday that used the popular site to focus on jobs and the economy.

White House officials say Obama sees the social media tool as a way to reach beyond mainstream media and interact with Americans directly, particularly the more tech-savvy part of the electorate as his campaign for re-election in 2012 ramps up. Twitter selected the questions from thousands submitted.

Twitter users had to keep their questions to the networking site's 140-character limit, but the president had no such restrictions. He answered in his trademark lengthy form on college costs, immigration, collective bargaining rights, the debt limit, manufacturing jobs, the housing crisis and other topics. The first question asked of the president was what mistakes he'd made in handling the recession.

Obama defended his stimulus program as "the right thing to do," but he allowed that his administration had underestimated the severity of the recession and so he did not prepare the American people "for how long this was going to take." THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

China's interest rates put lid on oil prices

A stronger dollar and higher interest rates in China kept a lid on the price of oil yesterday.

Benchmark West Texas Intermediate crude for August delivery lost 24 cents to settle at $96.65 US per barrel on the New York Mercantile Exchange.

Brent crude, which is used to price many international oil varieties, added a penny to settle at $113.62 per barrel on the ICE Futures exchange in London.

Canadian wine grows in annual production

Canada's wine industry has far outpaced overall growth in the beverage sector over the past decade, but is still losing market share at home and abroad, says a new report from BMO Capital Markets Economics.

Canadian wine production has grown by 7.6 per cent a year since 1998, compared with just one per cent for the overall beverage sector.

But BMO said the market share for Canadian wineries slipped to about one-third of the domestic market in 2010 in the face of pressure from imports.

The appreciation of the loonie and constraints on red wine production in Canada have helped spur imports from so-called "New World" producers such as Australia and Argentina as well as traditional wine powers.

The main imports are from France, Italy, the United States and Australia. But new competitors have caused France's leading share of the Canadian import market to slip.

Industry activity should strengthen over the next few years, the report said.

While production has picked up since early last year, demand will likely be constrained by cautious consumers and the loonie's strength. The U.S. is the largest foreign markets for Canadian wines.

The CORE's one of a kind fashion show gives Stampede fans a new twist ◗ Trade in and get some chic

JENNIFER LARAWAY
METRO CALGARY

Yee Haw! Stampede is finally upon us, so you know what that means: cutting out of work early, drinking and dancing with people you don't know, and seeing some amazing cowboy inspired outfits.

No I'm not talking about the Wranglers that are too tight with the very faux-pas cell phone holder attached to them (guys stop doing that… seriously). I'm talking about those sexy fashion-forward trend setters that usually parade down Stephen Avenue.

Today at lunch, The CORE shopping centre shows Calgarians how to trade in their designer suits for a cowboy chic outfit with a one-of-a-kind fashion show starting at 12:10 pm between 2nd and 3rd street.

Sarah Stachiw is the marketing coordinator for The CORE — TD Square and she gave us an insider's exclusive on what goes into making this show happen. The first obstacle the team has to overcome is how to get people's attention.

They start planning their strategy months in advance and wrangle in talent from EvelineCharles, swag bag sponsors, and book the models.

Needless to say, there are a lot of events to compete with during Stampede.

"There is always a concern that people won't make it out to the event," shares Stachiw. "But we are always happily surprised to see the crowds."

The CORE's show choreographer, Carman Portelli, chimes in.

"The CORE is known for showcasing something different each fashion show, and we enjoy creating a new experience especially each Stampede."

Their secret to a successful event?

Know your audience: hit the downtown crowd up over their lunch break and keep ahead of the curve.

"We are always keeping our eye on trends in the fashion world, with hair and makeup, outfits, music and even the stage," explains Stachiw.

In fact, Matt Masters is lined up to perform the music at this year's show, but sure to steal the spotlight are the clothes pulled by The CORE's resident stylist Carl Abad. We got a sneak peek at the outfits and let's just say they're enough to make any cowboy buck.

They are the right mix of sexy, chic, and country. For more information, visit coreshopping.ca.

The party

Joining in. Never one to miss out on a good party, Jordan Knight, famously from New Kids on the Block, is coming to cowtown, but he's not just celebrating Stampede. Knight just launched his own label JK Music, which is already set to release Unfinished, his first solo-project in over five years. Knight will be performing at the Scotiabank Saddledome in a dream team of epic boy band proportions. This appearance includes Knight's former band New Kids on The Block and their one-time rivals: Backstreet Boys. Tickets are still available and good seats will run you about $100. Check ticketmaster.ca for details.

Wedged between rehearsal, onstage and candid backstage footage is a portrait of a wounded man struggling with a grave personal and professional disappointment.

It's like watching someone go through a bad breakup for 90 minutes, with musical numbers and the odd joke.

This documentary is for all showbiz aficionados but primarily for Coco completests.

A monstrous box-office hit

HANDOUT

▶ Transformers: Dark of the Moon

Director Michael Bay's third installment in the Transformers franchise proved to be a monstrous international hit this week, taking in a whopping $210 million and in the process posting the biggest opening of all-time in seven countries, lead by Korea with $28 million.

In its first six and a half days, Dark of the Moon from Paramount became a global sensation, earning nearly $400 million with 60 per cent of the North American and 70 per cent of the international business generated by 3-D showings.

IMAX set its own global record with Transformers 3 as well, with $23.1 million in global sales since the film's launch.

In a distant second place is the Walt Disney release of Cars 2, also in 3-D, with $22.1 million in its second weekend.

The latest film from the hugely successful Pixar Animation Studio has a global cumulative gross approaching $200 million and is finding favour in the international marketplace with family audiences who can relate to its internationally themed storyline.

Rounding out this international 3-D triple-play is Kung Fu Panda 2 in third place with $19 million.

We're going to hell for re-reporting this, but you're going to hell for reading it, so see you there. Hours after Casey Anthony, the Florida mother accused of murdering her two-year-old daughter, was found not guilty (in a controversial verdict), Steve Hirsch, the head of porn company Vivid Entertainment, called to offer her a job, reports TMZ.

"Whether you agree with the verdict or not, Casey will want to move forward with her life and has a right to make a living. It's not going to be easy for her and we believe we can help her make the transition into a new life," he told the site. Pure class.

Domestic violence charge dropped against Lohan's dad

FRAZER HARRISON/GETTY IMAGES

▶ Michael Lohan

Prosecutors have dropped a misdemeanour domestic violence charge against Lindsay Lohan's father after his ex-girlfriend failed to show up at trial.

District attorney's spokeswoman Sandi Gibbons said Tuesday the office will no longer pursue the case against Michael Lohan after his ex-girlfriend, Kate Major, could not be located.

The elder Lohan was arrested in March and has pleaded not guilty to misdemeanour domestic violence battery.

A trial was scheduled to begin Tuesday, but Gibbons said it could not proceed without Major's co-operation.

Michael Lohan's attorney, Dana Cole, says he worked out an agreement with Major so she wouldn't testify.

Cole says Major wasn't paid anything, and she declined to co-operate because she did not want a court spectacle.

Denise Richards keeping fit at 40

Denise Richards is 40 years old, which is surprising because she acts 20 years younger.

Her secret to staying slim? "I am very active," she tells Self.com.

"I found what works for my body — everyone's body is different and I think it's best to find what works for you. For me it's Pilates and dance. My diet is 80 per cent vegetarian and I eat all day long. I have lots of little meals; it's best for me.

"My abs get the best workout with my Pilates reformer — I had two C-sections and it was the only thing I found that got my tummy flat."

Lady A's leading lady gets engaged

Lady Antebellum's Hillary Scott is engaged.

The 25-year-old singer's boyfriend, Chris Tyrell, popped the question over the Fourth of July weekend at a family getaway in East Tennessee.

Scott and the 24-year-old drummer met while touring with Tim McGraw in early 2010. People first reported the engagement Tuesday.

Scott is the second member of Lady A to end her single ways. Charles Kelley is married, leaving Dave Haywood as the lone available member of the Grammy-winning trio.

Lady A turned in the top-selling country album of 2010 with Need You Now and is preparing to release its follow-up, Own The Night, due out Sept. 13.

The message from Milan and Paris for spring/summer 2012 is to lighten up and get in the swing of things ('60s style) Here's our breakdown of what was trending on the catwalks for the latest round of men's shows

Men on spring/summer trends

Brights, prints and all things loud

If you're not one for colour, you'd best learn to love it as it's going to be all over the place come next spring. Burberry showed ikat prints, raffia bobble hats and cork-soled, woven moccasin shoes. A possible answer to Prada's insanely popular flatform shoe? Maybe. Givenchy had obviously read the print memo too. The house rolled with Hawaiian surfer chic. That means lush, tropical prints and yes, skirts.

That '60s vibe

Get ready to start buying slimmer suits. It was back to the swinging '60s with designers taking inspiration from Carnaby Street and a young Michael Caine. Alexander McQueen went all Savile row meets rock 'n' roll with pyjama-style striped pants, a Mick Jagger-esque oversized dress shirt and even a flame print jacket. Conversely, Gucci went for slimmer silhouettes to suit the rakish,womanizer in Prince of Wales check and houndstooth – popular patterns at many shows including the avant-garde Comme des Garçons.

Peek-a-boo

If you're the type who likes to flash a bit of skin than the season's trend for transparent clothing might be for you. Giorgio Armani, Dolce & Gabbana and Maison Martin Margiela all teased with sheer and diaphanous knits. But of course, it was the Dolce & Gabbana duo that took it a step further with a nod to Sicilian fishing heritage. Sounds quaint but boy will it take some ballsy blokes to pull it off! The look: Mesh netting worn over sweaters.

Sporting Olympic chic

Olympic tickets may be hard to come by, but there's no shortage of sporty references in the collections. Calvin Klein looked to '80s athletic wear while Vivienne Westwood parodied the games with Olympic orb tees.

Fight blemishes naturally with the help of Kit Expert Celeste Lutrario, vice-president of research and development at Burt's Bees.
By Janine Falcon

Are natural acne-fighting products any less harsh than standard formulas?

"The key ingredient in most anti-blemish products is synthetic salicylic acid, which is effective, but can dry out the skin," says Lutrario. Natural salicylic acid, a component of willow bark extract, is effective, too, but in a different way, she adds.

Far from a-Dior-able

Hoots and thunderous applause erupted from backstage, but the audience at the Dior show Monday greeted the storied label's fall-winter 2011-12 haute couture with a short-lived flurry of halfhearted claps.

The collection was the first in 15 years not under the label's disgraced former creative director, John Galliano – and it showed.

The collection simply lacked cohesion. With sections that channeled the fluorescent pop esthetic of the 1980s, a sort of 1970s Marrakech bohemian vibe, and shiny modernist architecture, the show felt like a bunch of ideas thrown almost randomly together. It was like watching three shows in one – and not a particularly inspiring three shows, at that.

The nipped jackets and puffy skirts were embellished with the sort of amoeba-shaped appliques in eyepopping shades that were last seen on the costumes of 1987 teen pop sensation Tiffany and worn with oversized plastic cubes or spheres in guise of hats.

Making art from home

- Photos aren't meant to be hidden away on your computer's hard drive
- Give your pictures a second life by turning them into creative and unique decor pieces

DESIGN CENTRE

KARL LOHNES
HOME@METRONEWS.CA

There used to be a time when families would proudly display framed vacation, school and family photos as part of their decor. Nowadays, all my great photo memories are locked away in my computer and although easily emailed to friends and family, very rarely do I have any cool photos on display in my house.

New printing options will let you turn a simple photo into some fantastic artwork for the home.

Try cropping your favourite photo into a small 4" by 4" square and surround it with a very large white matte, then frame with a modern black wood frame.

This makes a simple image instantly look more modern. You can also turn coloured photos into black and white images — a great way to give a collage of framed photos some consistency.

Making poster-sized art

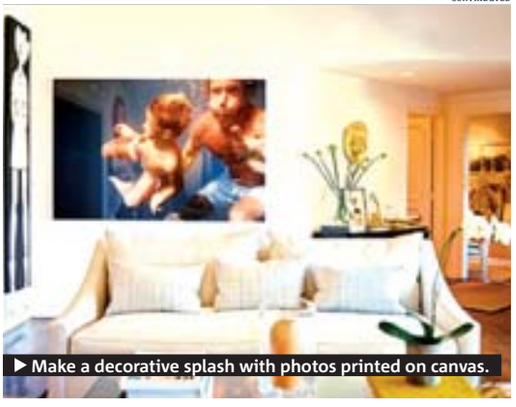
To make a small space feel bigger simply add large art or mirrors. This creates a big impact while taking up no precious floor space!

My favourite poster art is children's fridge art. Scan a brightly coloured painted handprint page and have it enlarged into poster-sized paper.

A simple frame (try Ikea) will help to give your new poster sized art a professionally-finished look.

One large poster of homemade art can look special whereas more than one looks a bit common.

CONTRIBUTED



▶ Make a decorative splash with photos printed on canvas.

Printing on canvas

The texture of the canvas and the thick edges of the stretcher frame will give an artful look to the simplest of pictures.

Using photophore, consider modifying your photo to make it a bit more artful. The antiquing, colour contrasting and black/white imaging are my favourites. When re-printed on canvas they will really look like artwork rather than just a photo.

Printing on metal

The sheen of the stainless steel appears beneath the artwork to help give a very contemporary and reflective quality to your artwork.

A lovely landscape shot, digitalized in black/white or sepia tone will take on a mysterious look when printed on metal.

Laser printing

The least expensive way to reproduce your images, laser printing allows you to enlarge or reduce your image for big or small impact.

ISTOCK IMAGES

▶ Frame the results on your two minutes in a photo booth .

ISTOCK IMAGES

▶ Black and white images take on a timeless quality.

Why not reproduce Grannie's portrait in black and white, then re-paint on brightly coloured makeup (creative gel markers work great) for a Warhol-ish look.

The original photo will be safe in an album or on the computer and you have fun personalizing photos for a fun and artful piece of art.

Frame matters

Create a real designer by framing modern-style art pieces with traditional frames.

- Black and white One of my favourite art pieces is a black and white photo of a single flower and it is framed in a super-fancy carved frame that has been spray painted in electric blue colour.
- Mix it up The juxtaposition between the modern art, traditional frame and splashy colour of frame makes for a statement piece in a boring hallway.

Dressing up spaghetti for summer

A fresh mango salsa and grilled shrimp skewers upgrade this pasta

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ H/O

This dish will serve six.

This summery pasta dish infused with Latin American flavours is a delightful option to serve and it is easy on the budget.

The recipe is also packed with healthy antioxidant and nutrient-rich ingredients such as mango and red pepper.

Removing the seeds from the jalapeno peppers takes away much of the heat. You can adjust the amount of jalapeno used to your taste. When working with jalapeños, ensure you wash you hands before touching your eyes.

If desired, replace shrimp with grilled skewers of boneless, skinless chicken breast.

Preparation:

1. Preheat grill to medium-high heat.
2. In a small bowl, whisk lime juice with oil, lime zest, honey and garlic. In a separate bowl, toss shrimp with 30 ml (2 tbsp) of the dressing. Let stand for 10 minutes. Thread shrimp onto 6 large wooden skewers that have been soaked in water to minimize flare ups.
3. Meanwhile, place remaining dressing mix and one mango in the bowl of a food processor fitted with a metal blade. Pulse until finely chopped. Add remaining mango, red peppers, onion, jalapeños, salt and pepper; pulse until coarsely chopped.
4. Prepare spaghetti according to package directions; drain well. Grill shrimp skewers for 3 minutes per side or until pink all over. Toss hot spaghetti with mango salsa mix and coriander. Garnish each portion with a shrimp skewer.

THE CANADIAN PRESS/ CATELLI HEALTHY HARVEST

Ingredients:

- 1 box (375 g) whole-grain spaghetti
- 50 ml (1/4 cup) lime juice
- 45 ml (3 tbsp) canola oil
- 10 ml (2 tsp) each finely grated lime zest and honey
- 3 cloves garlic, minced
- 500 g (1 lb) peeled, uncooked large shrimp
- 2 ripe mangoes, peeled, chopped and divided
- 2 red peppers, chopped
- 175 ml (3/4 cup) chopped red onion
- 2 jalapeno peppers, seeded and chopped
- 2 ml (1/2 tsp) each salt and pepper
- 250 ml (1 cup) coarsely chopped fresh coriander

Kitchen talk with Canada's Top Chef

Dale MacKay, the official winner of Top Chef Canada and owner of Vancouver's modern French restaurant Ensemble (and protégé of chef Gordon Ramsay), chops it up with Metro.

What's the one ingredient you must have in your kitchen at all times?
Spices are probably one of the most important ingredients that I use. I have a love for them all, but kaffir lime is something that I use a lot of.

What food do you feel is the most underrated?
Brussel sprouts. Often people just boil them and it's just not very tasty. But when you roast and cook them with bacon and other things, they're one of the most delicious veggies.

What is your guilty pleasure or comfort food?
Barbecue. All types of barbecue — pulled pork, ribs, flank, you know.

What's been your biggest kitchen disaster?
My most recent kitchen disaster was when my hot water tank burst in my restaurant. We had to shut down for 10 days.

What's the worst meal you ever made?
I cooked for my ex-girlfriend's family in Poland and it wasn't very nice. I tried to make an eggplant purée with white fish and some Polish potatoes and stuff. It just didn't go over well.

If you could go toe-to-toe with a chef, who would it be?
I'd like to go toe-to-toe with any chef. But I'd say Gordon Ramsay. I worked for him so it'd be hilarious to try to beat the master.

Cavendish avoids pileups on his way to stage victory in France

British speedster Mark Cavendish won a windy and crash-marred fifth stage of the Tour de France in a mass sprint yesterday, but Thor Hushovd of Norway kept the leader's yellow jersey.
Defending champion Alberto Contador fell in one crash, and RadioShack rider Janez Brajkovic quit the race with a broken collarbone after getting in another during the 164.5-kilometre trek from Carhaix to Cap Frehel on the English Channel.
Cavendish, one of the world's best sprinters, collected his 16th career Tour stage victory and his first this year.

Clemens perjury trial opens

Judge raps U.S. Congress for withholding an audiotape of former pitcher's deposition

Roger Clemens' perjury trial opened yesterday with both sides raising the prospect of calling a roster of former baseball stars as witnesses and the judge angrily criticizing Congress for withholding an audiotape of Clemens' deposition at the heart of the case.

Clemens is accused of lying under oath to the House Government Reform Committee in 2008 when he denied ever using performance-enhancing drugs during his record-setting career as a major league pitcher. The trial began with an intensive jury selection process expected to last into next week.

Prosecutors and the defence read the panel a list of people who may be called as witnesses or mentioned at the trial that included some of the biggest names in baseball, including those who have been at the centre of the steroid scandal such as Mark McGwire, Barry Bonds, Sammy Sosa, Rafael Palmeiro and Jose Canseco.

The list also included baseball commissioner Bud Selig, New York Yankees general manager Brian Cashman, former Yankees manager Joe Torre, former players union director Donald Fehr, and several other officials and teammates from the four major league teams Clemens played for.

Jurors were asked about their knowledge of those figures as well as their feelings about the case, baseball, Congress and the law. They were asked whether they played organized sports, read sports news or were baseball fans.

Oft-injured Hargreaves turns to YouTube to lure potential suitors

Injury-plagued England midfielder Owen Hargreaves is trying to persuade clubs to offer him a contract with YouTube videos showing him working out.

The 30-year-old Calgary-born Hargreaves was released by Manchester United at the end of the season after playing just five matches in three years because of knee problems. Hamstring and shoulder injuries hampered his comeback last season, limiting him to a five-minute appearance in November.

A series of clips show Hargreaves moving and running freely.

English papers have speculated MLS teams in Toronto and Vancouver may be interested.

Sources say Als padded attendance statistics

The Montreal Alouettes have declined to comment on a report they exaggerated attendance at games to help get governments to pay for the expansion of Percival Molson Stadium.

Montreal newspaper La Presse, quoting two unnamed team sources, reported yesterday that many games in recent seasons that were announced as sellouts were not full houses.

The report said anything less than a sellout could have hurt the bid for the $29-million expansion completed last year. The Quebec government put in $19.3 million, the City of Montreal $4 million and team owner Robert Wetenhall paid for the rest of the project.

Today's horoscope

For today's crossword answers and for expanded horoscopes, go to metronews.ca

♈ Aries March 21-April 20
No matter what others may want you to do, don't force it if you are not in the mood for socializing.

♉ Taurus April 21-May 21 Something will inspire or upset you to such an extent that you have to do something about it. Tread carefully.

♊ Gemini May 22-June 21 If others react with shock and surprise at what you do today, they only have themselves to blame.

♋ Cancer June 22-July 22 Make allowances for those who can't get themselves out of a rut.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug.23 Why are you comparing yourself to people who are on a higher rung of the ladder? You've come a long way.

♍ Virgo Aug. 24- Sept. 22 Can you be sure that what others are telling you is the truth? Make sure you do your own research.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22 Don't take what happens today too seriously. In the greater scheme of things, it's of little importance.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21 What happens today will remind you that fear is a negative emotion and serves no useful purpose.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 20 What happens today will delight you. Don't fight the future.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 21-Feb. 18 Remind yourself what your number one goal is — then get back on the path that will take you to it.

♓ Pisces Feb. 19-March 20. Someone's been keeping things from you but you haven't been betrayed. SALLY BROMPTON
